Ghost: Thorfinn

Played by: Devan Chandler Long

What do you like best about your character? "He doesn't dance around anything. He just speaks his feelings, and he's kind of unapologetic. He's the kind of guy who does whatever he wants, whenever he wants. If Thor's tired, he's taking a nap."

Finest moment? "My favorite scene is in the 'Pete's Wife' episode, where Sasappis and Thor are watching [fake reality series] It's Getting Hot in Here and they get into an argument about show-watching etiquette and Thor learns how to apologize. I had that same conversation with my son, but I was Sasappis in real life."

When did you realize you were funny? "I was this size at fourteen,

Everyone was like, 'Who is this, Lurch?' I got tired of being the big weirdo guy. I desperately wanted to fit in. Being able to make fun of myself helped me navigate my childhood. It was always about maximizing smiles-per-minute. I was voted 'Most Likely to Never Grow Up,' and I took that very seriously. It was a badge of honor."

Say something nice about your castmates. "Any time we get a good joke going, Danielle tries to not laugh and button it up, but it just pours out of her eyes, and she's crying. That kind of laughter is so fun to be around, and it's so contagious."

Favorite pop-culture ghost? "Patrick Swayze from Ghost. Because it's Patrick Swayze, and he's the coolest. He was romantic, and he had that cool mullet. It's just like pinnacle, elite ghosting."
